

Edmonton Bulletin

EDMONTON OWNERSHIP

Founded in 1880 by Hon. Frank Oliver

The Bulletin is the only Edmonton Newspaper Owned, Controlled and Operated by Local Men

Published every afternoon except Sunday, by the Alberta Free Press Limited, at The Bulletin Building, 1001-1003 Jasper Avenue, East, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

CHARLES E. CAMPBELL

Subscription Price: By mail, in advance, per year, in Canada, $5.00. In the United States, $7.00. By Carrier, per week, 15 cents or $7.00 per year. Telephone 2511.

Advertising Representatives:

VANCOUVER, B.C. — J. D. MacMillan, 1010, 11th Street.

TORONTO, Ontario — Albert E. Ford, 74 King Street East. Phone 831.

MONTREAL, QUEBEC — J. Crowley, 210 St. Joseph Street W. Phone 780.

UNITED STATES — L. J. Thompson, 101, 122 South Broadway, Chicago, 19 West 12th Street, New York, General Motors Building, Detroit, 135 Sansome Street, San Francisco, 400 South Broadway, Los Angeles, 1010 Broadway, Kansas City, Star Building, Saint Louis, 1010 Broadway, Building, St. Paul, 1010 Broadway.

LONDON, England — The Clough Corporation Limited, Royal Colonial Chambers, 20 Craven Street.

The Audit Bureau of Circulation audits the circulation books of The Edmonton Bulletin.

IF IT WILL HELP ALBERTA THE

EDMONTON BULLETIN IS FOR IT

THURSDAY, AUGUST 2

TIME FOR PLAIN SPEAKING

The provincial representatives have found out what they were called to Ottawa for. They thought they were going there to tell the national Government that they were not going to be any more of a burden to the federal government than they were before. They were to tell the federal government that they were not going to be any more of a burden to the federal government than they were before. They were to tell the federal government that they were not going to be any more of a burden to the federal government than they were before.

On Tuesday, August 1, all duly made out and ready for signature on the defunct line, were handed to the representatives of the provinces. These agreements called for acceptance of the preferred lump sum, but including a quit claim deed in respect to any other claims from the Dominion for relief purposes.

Premier Tachevasse promptly went down to the House of Commons and announced the Dominion for relief purposes. Premier Tachevasse promptly went down to the House of Commons and announced the Dominion for relief purposes. Premier Tachevasse promptly went down to the House of Commons and announced the Dominion for relief purposes.

The conference is evidently at a dead-lock, with prospects of a settlement being remote. That being the case, the representatives of the provinces may as well stop begging for what they won't get, and call for a show-down at once. They should not be any more of a burden to the federal government than they were before.

STABILIZE BUYER-INCOME

The Government of British Columbia is doing some "fiddling" but the codes there are aimed to regulate the business of the province. Orders have been issued setting minimum rates of pay for persons working in wholesale and retail stores, and for those in service occupations. The purpose evidently is to establish minimum wage rates for those engaged in all branches of industry and trade—and to give workers something to live on.

That every provincial government in Canada should do, as a matter of justice and sound policy, is to raise the minimum wage rate as far as a government can go in curbing competition without denying civil rights, favoring the making of monopolistic agreements, and penalizing the honest worker.

Every employee is entitled to fair wages; and it is to the interest of his employer, other business men and the public to see that he gets such wages. Every employer is equally entitled to a fair chance to compete for business so long as he pays such wages; and it is very much to the interest of the public that he be encouraged to compete rather than discouraged or even compelled to enter a combine against buyers.

Raising wages puts money in the pockets of customers, thus enabling them to buy more goods. Raising prices simply means that the buyer can get his goods for the money he has, and must buy less.

Most of the provinces had minimum wage laws before the Dominion Government. There have been cases in many such laws. There have been cases in many such laws. There have been cases in many such laws.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Ernest Brown's article in the Edmonton Bulletin of July 19 last on the origin and vicissitudes of trial by jury in British courts, is one of the most interesting and pertinent I have read for some time. His own words are:

"The common-law practice that Right Hon. Mackenzie King moved an amendment to Premier Bennett's motion for third reading of the Bill of Canada, and that that amendment was ruled out of order by the Speaker, is sufficient to say that Mr. King did nothing of the kind."

He reported an amendment, moved by Hon. Ian Mackenzie of Vancouver, which would have sent the bill back to committee with instructions that it be changed so that the Bank of Canada would be:

(a) Government owned and controlled; (b) Government owned; or (c) Government controlled. The Speaker objected that this amendment was out of order, because it offered three alternatives. Mr. Mackenzie proposed to drop the last two, making it a single demand for Government ownership and control. Mr. Irvine of Vancouver rather than reverse their verdict, became the pillars of British liberty."

A hundred years ago when there were no fewer than 223 capital crimes—to steal a sheep, to steal anything of the value of five shillings or more, or to commit any crime of no matter how small a value from a breach of peace, were hanging offences—an accused could not have a lawyer to defend him. That killed him. That killed him. That killed him.

The support of these gentlemen was not required to ensure the passage of the bill. Their support was not required to ensure the passage of the bill. Their support was not required to ensure the passage of the bill.

It was a choice of declaring that control of currency and credit in Canada should be in the hands of the Government, and exercised for the benefit of the people of Canada; or of handing over the control of currency and credit to private parties, to be exercised for their own benefit. Mr. Woodsworth and his twelve associates voted to hand over the control to the share-holders. Mr. Woodsworth and his twelve associates voted to hand over the control to the share-holders.

Forty Years Ago

From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

Telegraphic: War has been officially declared between Japan and China. The negroes of Ontario celebrated Emancipation Day yesterday. Kelly's Commercial Express have made a request to Washington to be sent home by freight train.

Marshall Wells, the Canadian champion cyclist, rode the half-mile at Toronto in 59 seconds. The Gaudreau the sculler has arranged to hold a regatta on Lake Simcoe.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Tekin Casualty lists published here show that the whereabouts of the missing sailors taken around Port Arthur, which city is now surrounded by Japanese forces on land and sea. London: Russia will claim damages from England for all contraband shipped there from the East.

Particular details of the battle of Tia Koo have been published and have spread consternation in St. Petersburg. Grading has commenced eighteen miles west of Edmonton for the main line of the Canadian Northern railway.

James McDermid, homeosted inspector, returned yesterday from a trip into the country east of Winnipeg.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

London, July 31.—Official announcement has been made of the general mobilization of the Danish army. The Belgian Government has ordered a general mobilization of the army. The Danish army is to be mobilized.

Censorship on war news has been established in nearly every country in Europe. Russian troops have been called to the colors. A Paris report states that German cavalry patrols have crossed the border into French territory, while German troops have been moved to points along the border.

Peaches

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

The peach must be picked when ripe and marketed at once, although improved refrigeration methods now make it possible to ship the fruit in a good condition across the United States and even to Europe.

Like most fruits, peaches have a large amount of water, and with small amounts of protein and about 10 per cent of sugar. The mineral matter is made up of potassium, lime, and iron. The delicious flavor of the peach is due to its fruit flesh.

The peach is one of the finest of the stone fruits, but it is a great misfortune to man that the peach does not keep as well as the apple. It is also not so easily raised because the tender blossoms do not stand the freezing to which they are often subjected in the temperate zones. The peach is a native of warm countries, having probably originated in Persia.

There are over five hundred varieties grown in America, but in general there are two kinds of peaches: the free stone, which is easily separated from the stone, and the cling stone, in which the pulp adheres to the stone. The commercial canner uses mostly the cling stone peach, which is packed in cans after canning. Varying amounts of sugar are added, according to the grade of peach and its own taste. The peach is packed in cans after canning.

For those who do not care about the appearance and who wish to eat peaches at home, I recommend the use of very ripe peaches. These are sold to bakers to be used in pies. The more expensive canned peaches are perfectly formed and put up in as high as 40 per cent of sugar.

For those who do not care about the appearance and who wish to eat peaches at home, I recommend the use of very ripe peaches. These are sold to bakers to be used in pies. The more expensive canned peaches are perfectly formed and put up in as high as 40 per cent of sugar.

Peel and halve the desired number of large ripe peaches. If the fresh peaches are not produced, the use of very ripe peaches is recommended. These are sold to bakers to be used in pies. The more expensive canned peaches are perfectly formed and put up in as high as 40 per cent of sugar.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Joyce writes: "I wish you would tell me something about numbers. I am very fond of them, but when I think of them, I have a secret fear that they are kind of poison or something."

ANSWER: The number is not only harmless, but a really valuable thing. It is used in proper combination with other foods. Its reputation is due to the fact that when the Chinese use it, they are very healthy. It is used in proper combination with other foods.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

The business man on August 3 may find it will not pay to be ultra conservative in the near future. He will have to make a great deal to pay to be ultra conservative in the near future. He will have to make a great deal to pay to be ultra conservative in the near future.

If a woman and August 3 is your birthday, you probably have fifty ambitions which should eventually materialize in the manner you desire. If you give in to discouragement, however, you will never realize your dreams.

If a man and August 3 is your natal day, you will find it a great deal to pay to be ultra conservative in the near future. He will have to make a great deal to pay to be ultra conservative in the near future. He will have to make a great deal to pay to be ultra conservative in the near future.

The Chinaman, Wong Poon Sing—Wong I am quite certain that you will be successful in solving the mystery of the killing of Jan Smith. The Chinaman, Wong Poon Sing—Wong I am quite certain that you will be successful in solving the mystery of the killing of Jan Smith.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date, in 1877, British Columbia was proclaimed a Dominion of the British Empire. In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island. Three years later, in 1886, Douglas was appointed governor of the province.

In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island. Three years later, in 1886, Douglas was appointed governor of the province. In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island.

In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island. Three years later, in 1886, Douglas was appointed governor of the province. In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island.

In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island. Three years later, in 1886, Douglas was appointed governor of the province. In 1883 when the Company first saw that the boundary would be to the north, Douglas built Fort Canimook (Fort Victoria) at the end of Vancouver Island.

THE MAIL BAG

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading. The facts are that the C.C.F. members have never voted against nationalization of the bank. Editor Bulletin: Your editorial reference to the vote of Mr. Woodsworth and other members on the Central Bank is misleading.

Sunshine Shafts

By George Clark

Two men were nestled together in a crowded street car. One of them noticed the relief people had for his eyes.

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

"What's that?" he asked. "It's all right," answered Bill. "I'm a little bit of a sight."

Dr. R. J. Scott

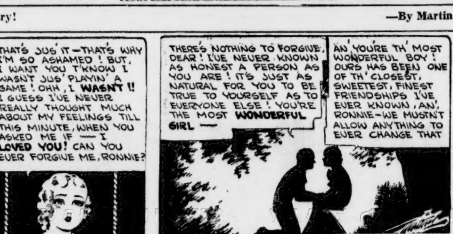

By Branner

Just a Sample

The Old Story!

Longitude at Last

Trouble

Taken From a Ride

